I. Introduction

1. The present addendum provides information on progress towards implementing recommendations issued by the Office of Internal Oversight Services (OIOS). Although a number of the entities under OIOS oversight coverage consistently comply with recommendations in a timely manner, this addendum draws attention to those recommendations deemed critical that have not yet been fully implemented. OIOS uses the following criteria to define a critical recommendation:

- Calls for changes in administrative issuances and organizational guidelines
- Corrects systemic control deficiencies in high-risk areas
- Results in measurable improvements to process and workflow, productivity, effectiveness and managerial controls
- Holds managers, staff and vendors accountable for fraud, waste and abuse or clears individuals of allegations
- Results in savings, recoveries or prevention of unjustified expenditures of 25,000 United States dollars ($) or more
- Is of topical importance
- Requires the concurrence of governing bodies
- Results in discontinuing cooperation with an executing/implementing partner or disqualification/blacklisting of a vendor
- Requires action by a Government in its capacity as host Government, donor, and the like (e.g. tax privileges)

2. The report is divided into four main areas. Following the introduction in section I, section II provides an overall assessment of the implementation of recommendations. The implementation rate, particularly of critical recommendations, is a measure of the impact of OIOS work on improving the management and operations of the Organization. Implementation can be accomplished only by those programme managers to whom recommendations are addressed; therefore the implementation rate is a reflection of the Organization's overall commitment to change and the maintenance of an effective system of internal control.

3. Using a consolidated ageing table (table 1), section III provides a closer look at outstanding recommendations by entity. To compile the data for the table, each entity was given a four-week period to respond to OIOS with details of progress made as at 30 June 2006. A small number of programme managers did not respond or provided incomplete responses. Those cases are indicated in the last column of the ageing table. Section III also includes, where applicable, commentaries on the recommendations of greatest concern, that is, those that OIOS deems to be of the highest priority owing to a response that has been slower than desired.

4. Finally, section IV contains the list of oversight reports issued by OIOS between 1 July 2005 and 30 June 2006, in compliance with resolution 59/272 (para. 1 (a)).

5. As mentioned in the main part of the report (A/61/264 (Part I)) OIOS launched in February 2006 a new recommendation tracking system, Issue Track, which replaced seven disparate databases that had been used in the Office in the past. During the migration of recommendation data from the old databases to Issue Track, OIOS performed a reassessment of all open recommendations, which resulted in the withdrawal of several older recommendations. The implementation statistics contained in the present report further exclude, for the first time, recommendations issued in the so-called “audit observations”, a reporting vehicle generally utilized by OIOS to communicate findings made during field audits to field level managers. They can be considered an interim reporting mechanism, while the most important audit findings and recommendations are included in the final audit reports to programme managers.

II. Overall assessment of the implementation of recommendations

A. Implementation statistics

^a Critical recommendations are given in parentheses.

6. For the period from 1 July 2005 to 30 June 2006, the figure shows that OIOS issued 1,919 recommendations to United Nations entities. Of the recommendations issued, 932 (49 per cent) were deemed critical. As at 30 June 2006, programme managers had implemented 899 (47 per cent) of all recommendations and 389 (42 per cent) of the critical recommendations. As compared with the same period last year, the implementation rate declined slightly, from 50 per cent for all recommendations and from 44 per cent for critical recommendations.

Decrease in implementation rate

7. The slight decrease in the overall implementation rate, a variation from previous periods, which showed a positive trend, may be partially explained by the 26 per cent increase in the number of critical recommendations issued during the period 1 July 2005 to 30 June 2006. OIOS acknowledges that critical recommendations can often be complicated and may require a longer time to implement fully; nevertheless, there remains room for improvement in order for the Organization to better manage risks associated with weak internal controls, inefficiencies and any impact of ineffective programme implementation.

Long-outstanding recommendations

8. The age of some recommendations is of particular concern. For example, 34 recommendations issued prior to 1 July 2002, of which 17 are critical, still remain without full implementation. The longer recommendations remain open, especially the critical ones, the higher the risk to the Organization. In the opinion of the Office of Internal Oversight Services, the full implementation of recommendations should only in very exceptional cases exceed three years.

Recommendations not accepted

9. A total of 68 recommendations have not been accepted by programme managers. While OIOS continues to cooperate with programme managers after the issuance of such recommendations, seeking to obtain their acceptance, it can happen that those discussions do not lead to a common position. In such cases, OIOS will document the disagreement in its annual and semi-annual reports and highlight the fact that the Organization takes the responsibility for the non-implementation and its potentially negative consequences.

B. Cost savings

10. During the reporting period, the Office identified a total of $49.2 million in cost savings, a 40 per cent increase over the same period last year. Actual savings and recoveries in the period totalled approximately $14.2 million, a decrease of $3.8 million from the same period last year.

11. A significant component of the recommended cost savings in the period results from the recommendations issued to the Department of Peacekeeping Operations relating to their management of strategic deployment stocks (report number AP/2004/600/02). The Office recommended that the Department discontinue the practice of replenishing the equipment released to the field, which had been transferred to strategic deployment stocks from the United Nations reserves. The action could result in a reduction in the missions' future budgets by an estimated total of $17.8 million, of which $8.9 million has been realized thus far. Another significant amount, $7.9 million of the recommended savings, stems from a recommendation issued to the United Nations Mission of Support in East

Timor/United Nations Transitional Administration in East Timor (UNMISET/UNTAET) in an OIOS review of supply of rations contracts (AP/2005/682/06). However, none of the recommended savings to UNMISET/UNTAET had been realized as at 30 June 2006.

III. Analysis of recommendations not fully implemented

A. Ageing of recommendations

12. Table 1 provides a breakdown by entity of all recommendations not implemented as at 30 June 2006, noting in parenthesis those deemed critical. The ageing of recommendations in the table denotes the number of years each recommendation has remained open pending full implementation.

B. Recommendations of greatest concern

13. Failure to implement recommendations expeditiously does not necessarily mean that the programme managers have been lax in their efforts to act on recommendations. Rather, it is sometimes the case that the implementation of recommendations is complex, requiring a longer time for full implementation. However, there are several recommendations to which progress towards implementation has been exceedingly slow. In those cases OIOS deems immediate attention is necessary.

Department for Disarmament Affairs

14. A recommendation issued in 2002 calling on the Department for Disarmament Affairs to develop a plan of diplomatic action both at the African level and vis-à-vis major donors to ensure the financial stability of the United Nations Regional Centre in Africa in Lomé, Togo, is not yet fully implemented. While OIOS has noted some progress in the matter, tangible results ensuring the financial stability of the Centre are still absent. The Office also notes that the United Nations Regional Centre in Asia and the Pacific has not yet been redeployed to Kathmandu, Nepal, although OIOS had recommended drawing up as soon as possible the relocation action plan with an appropriate deadline and subsequently implementing it. While there have been security issues involved in reaching a final agreement with the host country, the Department needs to move forward with concluding the agreement with the Nepalese authorities to relocate the Centre and discuss the possible dates for relocation.

Department of Management

15. A matter of concern is the slow implementation of one recommendation addressed to the Department in 2000 in the report on the follow-up review of the programme and administrative practices of UN-Habitat (see A/54/764). The Department had informed OIOS earlier that modules to train senior managers on the delegation of authority were ready and that its implementation was planned for the spring of 2006. However, no further clarifying information has been received by OIOS on whether the training took place and how many senior officials participated in it.

16. Five recommendations relating to the inspection of possible discrimination due to nationality, race, sex, religion and language in recruitment, promotion and placement (see A/56/956) issued in 2002 still remain open. While OIOS considers all five to be in progress, four years is an exceedingly long period for their implementation. The recommendations include:

- Human resources action plans should be strengthened to assist the Office of Human Resources Management in monitoring accountability of programme managers.
- The Office of Human Resources Management should undertake an evaluation of the complaint mechanisms for addressing cases of alleged discrimination with a view to strengthening them.

- The Office of Human Resources Management should include information on staff in the International Tribunals in the report of the Secretary-General on the composition of the Secretariat.
- The Office of Human Resources Management should ensure that performance appraisal data for each staff member is available in the IMIS system.
- The Office of Human Resources Management should include and verify the mother tongue of staff in IMIS.

17. The Office of Human Resources Management has not fully implemented a recommendation issued by OIOS in its report on the impact of the human resources management reform (see A/59/253) issued in 2004, which stressed the need for the former to define clearly how mobility will channel the skills and competencies, identified through departmental inventory, to meet the operational needs of departments. Non-implementation of that recommendation would lessen the effectiveness of the United Nations Secretariat mobility programme and, consequently, the objective set by the General Assembly would not be achieved.

Department of Peacekeeping Operations

18. It is a continuing matter of concern that following an investigation of sexual exploitation and abuse by a peacekeeper in the Democratic Republic of the Congo in 2001, the contingent member was not and will not be held accountable for his actions by the national authorities of his country. According to the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, the Permanent Mission of the country concerned deems the action taken thus far to be complete. In addition, OIOS recommended that the Department consider the most appropriate manner in which to advise the victim and her family of the investigation conducted by the national authorities of the peacekeeper and the actions taken by the United Nations. OIOS has not been kept informed of the actions taken on this matter.

19. The Office found that a United Nations Volunteer with the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUC) had falsified a total of 34 claims, totalling nearly $68,000. OIOS recommended in 2004 that the Department consider the referral of this matter to the relevant national jurisdiction for criminal prosecution. The Office of Legal Affairs concurred with the OIOS recommendation and on 26 April 2006 the Assistant Secretary-General of the Department advised the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Democratic Republic of the Congo to act accordingly. However, the referral for criminal prosecution has not yet been made.

20. In a case relating to the procurement for an upgrade of the Bunia airfield in MONUC, OIOS issued several critical recommendations: (a) to ensure that the Department's Procurement Division adheres to the confidentiality requirements of bid pricing; (b) to identify and promulgate reporting requirements on conflicts of interests so that Mission managers are aware of actual or potential conflicts; and (c) to identify and promulgate procedures on how those reports are recorded and stored. The Department has not accepted these recommendations, claiming that the responsibility rests with the United Nations Procurement Service. That view, however, is not correct given that the Mission's procurement activities fall within the purview of the Department. OIOS stresses that the Department should urgently address the issue.

21. OIOS uncovered fuel, rations and reimbursement fraud totalling approximately $1.5 million by a United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) contingent during an investigation. In response, the Office recommended the adoption of a carlog system to stem unaccounted use of vehicles. The Department has asserted that it can introduce the carlog system in contingent-owned vehicles with only the consent of the Government of the troop-contributing country. The failure to adopt this system leaves the Organization exposed to unnecessary risk.

22. An investigation in the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) found that the host country provided MINURSO staff with food and accommodations free of charge. Following that discovery, the Office recommended that MINURSO review the agreement between the host country and the United Nations in relation to accommodations and food for international staff. The Department did not accept the recommendation, noting that MINURSO was of the opinion that the renegotiation of the status-of-forces agreement at the present stage was not advisable as this would have far-reaching implications for its operations, both financially and politically. However, the above arrangement could put MINURSO in a vulnerable position, with possible political implications. Further, it remains to be explored whether the host country is deducting its deliveries and services from its United Nations contribution, thus minimizing or nullifying the financial benefits for the United Nations.

United Nations Human Settlements Programme

23. During an audit in 2000, OIOS recommended that the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat) develop a procedures manual to ensure the establishment of sound financial and budgetary controls for its technical cooperation projects. While recognizing the complexities involved in developing such a manual, progress has been exceedingly slow. It is important that UN-Habitat field staff be provided with clear guidance and a good understanding of what is expected of them when discharging their roles and responsibilities. This should reduce the risk of financial and budgetary irregularities.

United Nations Monitoring, Verification and Inspection Commission

24. In its audit of the United Nations Monitoring, Verification and Inspection Commission in 2005, the Office found that despite drastic changes in Iraq since March 2003, the UNMOVIC programme of work had not been revised since that date. OIOS recommended that UNMOVIC revise its programme of work annually to respond to the changed situation on the ground. Since UNMOVIC is a subsidiary body of the Security Council and takes its instructions directly from the Council, OIOS addressed the above recommendation to the Secretary-General. OIOS has not received a response from the Executive Office of the Secretary-General.

IV. List of reports: 1 July 2005-30 June 2006

25. The Office of Internal Oversight Services issued 234 oversight reports during the 12-month period from 1 July 2005 to 30 June 2006, including 18 reports to the General Assembly. Mindful of the word count limitations that OIOS has to adhere to, table 2 summarizes the subject matter of each report in compliance with General Assembly resolution 59/272, paragraph 1 (a).

26. Pursuant to paragraph 1 (c) of the same resolution, Member States have access to OIOS reports upon request. The titles of all OIOS reports are available from <http://www.un.org/Depts/oios/report&pub.htm>.
