

Seventy-second session

Agenda item 118

The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism StrategyActivities of the United Nations system in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy*Report of the Secretary-General*I. Introduction

1. The General Assembly, in its resolution 70/291, requested the Secretary-General to submit a report no later than April 2018 on progress made in the implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, including suggestions for the future implementation of the Strategy by the United Nations system.
2. Over the past three decades, the frequency, deadliness and geographical reach of acts of terrorism have grown rapidly and evolved into an unprecedented threat to international peace, security and development. International and internal conflicts have also grown in intensity and number, destroying societies and destabilizing entire regions. Terrorism is now one of the most profound challenges of our time. No country is immune from this threat, and no country can address this challenge alone. The cross-border nature of the financing, recruitment and planning of acts of terrorism is a common feature of the phenomenon and therefore requires a collective response. Providing support to Member States so they are able to respond to this global threat in a balanced and effective manner is one of the Secretary-General's top priorities.
3. The United Nations continues to support Member States in developing and implementing responses that take into consideration all four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, which comprise: (a) measures to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism; (b) measures to prevent and combat terrorism; (c) measures to build States' capacity to prevent and combat terrorism and to strengthen the role of the United Nations in that regard; and (d) measures to ensure respect for human rights for all and the rule of law as the fundamental basis for the fight against terrorism. Responses based on a balanced implementation of all four pillars have tended to be more successful at preventing and countering terrorist attacks.
4. Challenges to countering terrorism are compounded by rapid developments in closed communications technologies, such as the dark web and encryption, as terrorist groups quickly adapt and make use of these developments to facilitate their financing, recruitment and propaganda, and by the acquisition of weapons and improvements in logistics. This has had a devastating impact on local communities across the world, particularly with regard to the most marginalized members of society. The forthcoming review of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy will provide Member States with the opportunity to continue to guide the content of the Strategy and its priorities.

5. The primary responsibility for the implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy rests with Member States, and the United Nations has an important role in promoting coordination and coherence at the national, regional and global levels so as to best provide assistance to Member States, upon their request, for the balanced implementation of the Strategy.

6. In June 2017, the General Assembly took a further step in that direction and adopted resolution 71/291 on strengthening the capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. By the same resolution, the Assembly also established the Office of Counter-Terrorism and appointed a new Under-Secretary-General of the Office of Counter-Terrorism for the purpose of enhancing the ability of the Organization to better respond to the growing needs of the international community to counter terrorism.

7. The present report outlines the key trends and challenges in the evolving global terrorism landscape, and emphasizes the importance of international cooperation to counter terrorism effectively. It provides an overview of the international response to the transnational threat of terrorism and some of the key deficits that must still be addressed in the near future. It concludes by offering observations and recommendations on ways to forge new international counter-terrorism partnerships, which will be key to stay ahead of the threat posed by terrorist groups.

II. Evolving global terrorism landscape

A. Overview of the current threats

8. Following the rise of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) after 2014, the international community has faced a continuously transforming global terrorism landscape. Foreign terrorist fighters have been recruited from many Member States, and terrorist attacks have spread to an increasing number of countries. Terrorist groups such as ISIL, Al-Qaida and Boko Haram transcend national boundaries, which creates the need for increased international cooperation to counter terrorism and prevent violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism.

9. The global fight against terrorism is currently entering a new phase in which the international community has to confront several parallel and interlinked global terror networks. Despite the major military setbacks that ISIL experienced in Iraq, the Syrian Arab Republic and the southern Philippines in 2016 and 2017, the group and its affiliates continue to pose a significant and evolving threat around the world. ISIL is now organized as a global network with a flat hierarchy and less operational control over its affiliates. Although the structure of its propaganda machinery and the quantity and quality of its output continue to deteriorate, ISIL is likely to try to retain global influence after its territorial collapse by using the Internet and social media platforms to inspire, mobilize and direct its supporters to carry out attacks in their home countries.

10. The military defeat of ISIL in Iraq and the Syrian Arab Republic has also contributed to the threat from returning or relocating foreign terrorist fighters who, in combination with a growing number of “frustrated travellers”,¹ pose challenges to domestic security in Member States. Many returnees are well trained and equipped to carry out attacks in their own countries and are able to infuse existing domestic networks with new capacities, while others hope to radicalize and recruit new followers to their respective causes. A number of returnees are women and children, which presents a range of specific challenges for Member States. The issue of returning and relocating foreign terrorist fighters is a global phenomenon that demands an urgent and concerted multilateral response.

11. The global Al-Qaida network has remained resilient in several regions around the world. Despite being under military pressure, Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula increasingly serves as the communications hub for Al-Qaida as a whole. Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb has expanded its operations in the Sahel and West Africa, while Boko Haram continues to pose a threat to Nigeria and its neighbours despite being significantly weakened by military pressure. In East Africa, Al-Shabaab has been more active and dominant than ISIL and remains able to plan and execute large-scale attacks. Some members of the ISIL and Al-Qaida networks have been willing and able to support each other in the preparation of attacks.

12. In addition, terrorist tactics have also continued to evolve. Technological advances in recent years have made it easier for terrorists to spread propaganda and recruit followers online. They exploit social media, including encrypted communications and the dark web, to spread information and expertise, such as designs for improvised explosive devices and methodologies of attack, and coordinate and facilitate attacks. Terrorist groups have also urged their supporters to carry out less sophisticated attacks, involving vehicles, guns and knives, which require limited training and planning and are extremely difficult to detect. Many of the attacks have been directed against soft targets, such as public areas, to maximize casualties and instil fear.

13. Terrorist and violent extremist groups around the world remain intent on driving a wedge between and within societies. They hinder the efforts of the international community to maintain peace and security, protect human rights and foster sustainable development. Terrorist groups such as ISIL and Al-Qaida promote a destructive narrative. However, violent extremist groups such as racial supremacists, far-right groups and other religiously or politically motivated groups also pose a significant threat to the cohesion and safety of our societies and communities.

B. Emerging threats and challenges: artificial intelligence, drones and chemical, biological, radiological or nuclear attacks and cyberattacks

14. Recent technological advances in the areas of artificial intelligence, robotics, biotechnology and the Internet have brought great advancements to humanity by connecting people around the world and fostering sustainable development in areas such as general economic productivity, health care and transportation. These technologies promise to bring further advancements in the future.

15. These developments, however, also enable the exchange of information on logistics, recruitment and planning among members of terrorist and violent extremist groups. In addition, the online spread of propaganda and hate speech, sometimes inadvertently promoted by algorithmic bias, contribute to the polarization of societies and play into the strategies of incitement and recruitment by these groups.

16. Terrorists are also likely to enhance their offensive capacities to exploit the increased interconnectedness of sectors, such as banking and finance, telecommunications, emergency services, air, maritime and rail transportation, and energy and water supply, to carry out cyberattacks on such critical infrastructure systems. The growing access to autonomous and self-flying or self-moving machines will expand the range of possible terrorist attacks. The availability of do-it-yourself kits to modify genes in living cells has the potential to empower small groups to unleash “bioterror”, which could impact millions.

17. Terrorist and violent extremist groups have also been known to use environmental changes to their advantage, either by more easily exploiting sparser resources or by using them as assets or weapons such as for the purposes of flooding land and poisoning wells.

18. These and many as-yet-unforeseen future threats and challenges span various political, social, economic and cultural dimensions and actors. While initial collaborative efforts such as the Global Internet Forum to Counter Terrorism are laudable, preventing new threats and staying ahead of existing ones will require strategic partnerships and international cooperation between Member States, international and regional organizations, the private sector, academia and others. The Secretary-General has asked the Office of Counter-Terrorism to increase its efforts in leading and coordinating the United Nations system to become more adaptive and innovative in addressing these developments. As a first step, the Office of Counter-Terrorism is cooperating with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) on a global study to better understand the role of online tools in the recruitment of terrorists. The project will also provide a forum for dialogue among Member States, the United Nations and the private Internet technology sector, and aims to produce policy recommendations in this respect.

III. Addressing the deficit in multilateral cooperation

19. Since the adoption of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy in 2006, the international community has attempted to address the evolving threat of terrorism through the balanced implementation of its four pillars. The biennial review of the Strategy has provided an opportunity to address deficits and gaps in the international community’s approach to specific counter-terrorism challenges.

20. During the high-level segment of the seventy-second session of the General Assembly in September 2017, 152 leaders, representing the vast majority of Member States, highlighted the need to improve international cooperation in fighting terrorism. The Secretary-General shares their assessment, and it is clear that there is a deficit of cooperation on multiple levels with regard to addressing this increasingly transnational and multifaceted threat, in terms of both its manifestation and its human and socioeconomic consequences. A new era of collaboration is needed to counter the scourge of terrorism.

A. Building consensus on global counter-terrorism efforts

21. Terrorism, and the need to find effective ways to counter it, is indeed one issue which truly brings together the entire international community. The United Nations

Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, along with an array of Security Council resolutions and statements, as well as human rights and humanitarian law, are at the core of the international policy framework in place that aims to counter terrorism effectively. However, all too often the international community's efforts to contend with the challenge of terrorism are mired in politics; unfortunately, terrorist groups have taken advantage of this and have tried to divide us even further.

22. While more constructive political dialogue on terrorism will certainly be needed in the future, Member States need to focus more on that which unites us in this battle rather than on that which divides us. The focus has to shift towards a pragmatic and practical approach that focuses on enhancing the technical and operational methods of countering terrorism and mobilizing multilateral cooperation at the bilateral, regional and global levels.

23. The United Nations High-level Conference of Heads of Counter-Terrorism Agencies of Member States, which will take place at United Nations Headquarters on 28 and 29 June 2018, will be the first step towards building a new partnership for multilateral cooperation and a step closer towards depoliticizing the international community's counter-terrorism efforts. The theme of the conference is "Strengthening international cooperation to combat the evolving threat of terrorism". It will bring together the heads of national counter-terrorism agencies for operational and practical exchanges and consensus-building on key terrorism issues affecting Member States. It will hopefully spur a new era of international cooperation, as well as the creation of operational partnerships that focus on finding practical solutions to the terrorism threat with which the international community is contending, with a view to implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy.

B. Centrality of national ownership, strengthening governance and devising sustainable policies

24. While multilateral cooperation is essential to countering the terrorist threat, the primary responsibility for countering terrorism rests with Member States, as indicated in the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. National ownership of counter-terrorism efforts is essential if they are to succeed. States' responsibilities in this area are, however, inherently linked to their principal duty to protect populations from terrorist attacks, as well as the need to ensure that counter-terrorism measures themselves do no harm and do not fuel grievances. The 2017 UNDP report entitled "Journey to extremism in Africa: drivers, incentives and the tipping point for recruitment"² demonstrated that 71 per cent of the individuals interviewed pointed to "government action", such as the "killing of a family member or friend" or the "arrest of a family member or friend" as the transformative trigger, or tipping point, that pushed these at-risk individuals from radical ideas to taking the step to joining a violent extremist group.

25. Since 11 September 2001 the world has become increasingly polarized. This path of increasing polarization and division only sows the seeds for further conflict. Member States must avoid the terrorist-laid trap of counter-productive responses. Rather than peace, safety and unity, the vicious cycle of provocation and response will bring only more hatred.

26. The Secretary-General has repeatedly stressed that terrorism is not associated with any religion, ethnicity or race. In 2017, a United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre study found that more often than not, violent extremists are not sufficiently literate when it comes to the religion that they espouse. Alienating strategies and hate must be countered by evidence-based policies, inclusive decision-making, diversity, the protection of minorities and vulnerable people, accountability and justice. Furthermore, the Secretary-General would like to emphasize the importance of intercultural dialogue in efforts to bridge societal and cultural schisms.

C. Need for new counter-terrorism partnerships

27. Counter-terrorism is on the agenda of many regional and subregional organizations. Over the years, Member States have sought to leverage international, regional and bilateral initiatives and arrangements in the fight against terrorism. Many of them have also established new global forums and coalitions to exchange good practices and coordinate their efforts. However, much more needs to be done.

28. The collaborative efforts of Member States to prevent and counter terrorism need to be based on the rule of law and must respect human rights. The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, relevant Security Council resolutions, the international legal instruments against terrorism and international law provide a strong political and legal framework. These shared commitments and obligations need to be translated into concrete and practical actions by Member States so that they can share expertise and resources and improve the exchange of critical information in a timely and secure manner at the bilateral, regional and global levels.

29. Enhanced cooperation among the United Nations, regional and subregional organizations and other multilateral forums, such as the Global Counterterrorism Forum, will also play a supporting role in helping to advance international efforts to effectively counter terrorism. Regional and subregional organizations have the potential to be a multiplying force that supports the efforts of Member States to counter terrorism. The General Assembly has encouraged Member States to take advantage of these organizations and to facilitate their contributions in this area.

30. Moreover, private sector assets can be vulnerable to exploitation or attack by terrorists. This has become particularly evident as terrorist groups abuse, for instance, new technologies to exploit the financial sector and target critical infrastructure systems and/or soft targets. Voluntary and regulatory approaches to tackling these challenges is important. However, public-private partnerships can also help improve information-sharing and the effectiveness of protective and mitigation measures; therefore, these partnerships need to augment any existing regulatory measures. While private sector entities naturally have a vested interest in protecting their businesses, they must also place a heavier emphasis on corporate social responsibility in the context of countering terrorism.

31. The primary responsibility for preventing and countering terrorism rests with national Governments; however, the General Assembly and the Security Council have recognized that civil society, including non-governmental organizations, can make important contributions to these efforts. It is vital to take full advantage of the potential contributions of civil society organizations, especially with regard to building resilience to violent extremism as and when it is conducive to terrorism, and mitigating the consequences of terrorism.

D. Multilateral architecture and legal frameworks for counter-terrorism

32. The international community has responded to the evolving global terrorist threat by developing a comprehensive multilateral counter-terrorism architecture at the global, regional and national levels. The United Nations has a key role to play in developing the international normative and legal counter-terrorism framework and putting in place arrangements for its effective implementation. Currently, this framework includes international conventions and protocols relating to terrorism and human rights, the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and other General Assembly and Security Council resolutions (see annex I). Other multilateral bodies, such as the Global Counterterrorism Forum, also play an important role in establishing good practices. In addition, many Member States have developed their own national legislative frameworks on the basis of the existing international framework, and have cooperated bilaterally and regionally to strengthen action against terrorism.

E. United Nations action to address the grave consequences of terrorism: human rights and victims

33. As the Secretary-General highlighted during his speech on counter-terrorism and human rights in London on 16 November 2017, the fight against terrorism cannot succeed without ensuring respect for human rights and the rule of law. The adoption of counter-terrorism laws and policies without adequate consideration of the implications for the protection of human rights is a major cause of concern. Also of particular concern is the treatment of children associated with terrorist groups as security risks rather than as victims.

34. Acts of terrorism have claimed the lives of many thousands of victims every year for more than a decade, and have also led to the near collapse of State institutions, particularly in less urbanized areas and borders. Some terrorism-affected countries have a notable lack of institutional capacities to curb the threat of and prevent terrorist attacks. Such countries also tend to need stronger support in their efforts to uphold the rights and dignity of the victims and survivors of acts of terrorism.

35. The use of sexual violence as a tactic of terrorism, including rape, forced marriage and sexual slavery, leaves survivors and their families with very serious physical and psychological scars and with difficult social consequences (see S/2017/249). All too often, these victims experience a complete lack of support with regard to their rights to justice and dignity and to psychosocial and livelihood support.

36. In order to better address these concerns, the United Nations has taken a number of steps to increase accountability for terrorist crimes and has emphasized the importance of strengthening judicial cooperation. The Security Council, in its resolution 2322 \(2016\), reaffirmed that those responsible for terrorist acts, and violations of international humanitarian law or human rights law, must be held accountable, particularly through increased international cooperation. Similarly, steps taken at the national level have also emphasized the need for effective mechanisms to bring perpetrators of heinous crimes to justice.

37. The international community cannot forget the impact of terrorism on ordinary people and must support those who suffer the consequences of indiscriminate terrorist acts; it must help to effectively heal their wounds, rehabilitate victims and ensure their effective reintegration into their communities. Victims have a central role in any strategy or action plan to counter terrorism, and it is key that their unique needs and rights be recognized. This can help prevent the spread of violent extremism conducive to terrorism. The Security Council, in its resolution 2331 \(2016\), expressed its concern regarding the use of sexual and gender-based violence as a tactic of terrorism and affirmed that victims of sexual violence by terrorist groups should also be treated as victims of terrorism. The establishment of 21 August as the International Day of Remembrance of and Tribute to the Victims of Terrorism underscores the commitment of the international community to stand in solidarity with victims and to work towards the recognition of their rights.

F. Winning the hearts and minds of our youth

38. For decades, terrorist groups have targeted young people in their recruitment efforts. Through the tactics of peer-to-peer engagement, the exploitation of grievances and the use of appealing aesthetics such as digital propaganda inspired by video games, these groups have exploited the tendency in young people to look for a sense of purpose that feels unique and distinct from the social norm.

39. Young people are often drawn to terrorist and violent extremist groups because of a lack of hope. There are three key factors, among others, which contribute to this: first, a lack of opportunity, in particular regarding education and employment; second, a sense of discrimination and exclusion; and third, the oppressive nature of some counter-terrorism measures. These and other factors can make young people vulnerable to the false lure of terrorist groups. The majority of recruits tend to be below the age of 25. Governments need to be sensitive to such issues and focus on giving our youth hope in concrete ways by pursuing policies that do not lead to a lack of opportunity or to discrimination, exclusion and oppression. When young people are raped and killed in their homes, schools and villages, it must be recognized that terrorism has indeed become one of the most threatening global scourges for them.

40. Jobs, education and vocational training for young people must be an absolute priority in national development plans and in international development cooperation. While creating such opportunities is essential, the international community must also listen to, engage with and inspire our young people to become part of decision-making processes. Such engagement must be more than symbolic or an exercise in “checking boxes”. It must be meaningful and involve participation based on a more creative, bottom-up approach, leveraging technology whenever possible. The Secretary-General intends to make the United Nations much more responsive and relevant to the world’s youth (see A/72/761-S/2018/86).

41. Young people are also seeking visionary ideas that capture their imaginations and offer tangible change. Young people are an overwhelmingly positive asset to our societies, and they need to be listened to and, in some cases, supported and protected. We need to invest more in harnessing the positive force that our young people represent in social and economic innovation.

IV. Progress made in the implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy by United Nations entities and Member States

42. Many entities of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force have supported the implementation of the four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy during the past two years. Some of these activities are highlighted below. Further details are provided in annex II, which also includes a matrix of United Nations counter-terrorism projects and activities.

Pillar I: measures to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism

43. Preventing and resolving conflicts is the first line of defence against terrorism. When the Secretary-General took up his position, he made this a priority and called for a new focus on conflict prevention and sustaining peace. In January 2018, he published his report on peacebuilding and sustaining peace (A/72/707-S/2018/43), which set out the scale and nature of the challenge. He is convinced that the fragmentation of efforts across the United Nations system undermines its ability to support Member States in their efforts to build and sustain peaceful societies and to respond in an early and effective manner to conflicts and crises. In his report, the Secretary-General introduced a set of mutually reinforcing reforms to ensure that the United Nations is fit for purpose, including in the realms of development, management and peace and security.

44. Following the release of the Plan of Action to Prevent Violent Extremism (A/70/674), UNDP developed a comprehensive strategic framework in March 2016 entitled “Preventing violent extremism through promoting inclusive development, tolerance and respect for diversity”, which was revised in February 2017.³ UNDP has implemented a range of projects to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism and violent extremism through inclusive development and the promotion of tolerance, and the mitigation of those factors that provide a tipping point from alienation towards radicalization and eventually violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism.

Pillar II: measures to prevent and combat terrorism

45. In accordance with Security Council resolutions 2322 (2016) and 2396 (2017), the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate has stepped up its efforts to promote the responsible use of biometrics. Along with the Working Group on Border Management and Law Enforcement relating to Counter-Terrorism of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, it is developing a compendium of existing good practices and recommendations for Member States with regard to the collection, recording and sharing of biometrics. The International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) has continued to assist Member States with the detection and positive identification of members of known transnational terrorist groups and their facilitators. INTERPOL has also assisted law enforcement efforts in Member States by enhancing national and regional border security, reducing the cross-border movement of terrorists and their affiliates and identifying and disrupting networks that facilitate their travel.

Pillar III: measures to build States’ capacity to prevent and combat terrorism and to strengthen the role of the United Nations system in this regard

46. The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) has provided legal assistance to help draft national counter-terrorism legislation. Since January 2016, it has contributed to 40 additional ratifications by Member States of the international conventions and protocols related to terrorism, assisted in revising or drafting more than 35 pieces of legislation and trained more than 8,000 criminal justice officials through more than 400 workshops. For example, UNODC has provided training to Iraqi judges and police officers so that they can be deployed to territories liberated from ISIL to investigate, prosecute and adjudicate terrorism offences.

Pillar IV: measures to ensure the protection of human rights and the rule of law as the fundamental basis of the fight against terrorism

47. The United Nations has been unequivocal in its assertion that all national legislation, policies, strategies and practices adopted to counter terrorism and prevent violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism must respect and protect human rights and the rule of law. The United Nations continues to encourage Member States to focus counter-terrorism measures on the actual conduct of individuals and groups, rather than on the beliefs that they hold, which would contravene international human rights law.

48. The Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms while countering terrorism has continued to gather, request, receive and exchange information on alleged violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms while countering terrorism. She has also reported regularly to the Human Rights Council and the General Assembly with regard to good policies and practices, as well as existing and emerging challenges, in implementing counter-terrorism measures that fully respect human rights.

United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre

49. During the past two years, the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre of the Office of Counter-Terrorism has continued to provide capacity-building assistance to Member States, at their request, for the effective and balanced implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. In 2016, the Centre launched a five-year programme for the period 2016–2020, which was endorsed by the Centre's Advisory Board in December 2015. The programme guides the Centre's work across four broad outcomes, each related to the four pillars of the Strategy. During the reporting period, the Centre continued with the implementation of projects related to 12 priority thematic areas: preventing violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism; foreign terrorist fighters; counter-terrorism strategies; countering the financing of terrorism; border security and management; cybersecurity; respecting human rights while countering terrorism; supporting victims of terrorism; integrated assistance for countering terrorism; encouraging and supporting common action by United Nations entities on counter-terrorism; counter-terrorism networks; and South-South cooperation.

50. In addition, the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre has strengthened its ability to monitor and evaluate its contribution to the implementation of all four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. It systematically monitors progress in achieving the outputs and outcomes of the Centre's five-year programme on the basis of established indicators, baselines and targets. It has mainstreamed gender in its substantive work by integrating a gender perspective into the development and implementation of its capacity-building projects. The Centre has also expanded the practice of jointly implementing projects with United Nations entities to leverage specific expertise and avoid the duplication of effort.

51. Member States have also made significant efforts to implement the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The Secretariat has received submissions from the following Member States on their implementation of the Strategy: Algeria, Argentina, Belarus, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Cuba, Ecuador, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Israel, Japan, Latvia, Lebanon, Malaysia, Mali, Monaco, Montenegro, Netherlands, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Paraguay, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Romania, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Serbia, Singapore, Slovakia, Sweden, Switzerland, Syrian Arab Republic, Tunisia, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United States of America, Uruguay and Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of). In addition, the European Union and the Parliamentary Assembly of the Mediterranean provided inputs on their activities in support of the Strategy. These submissions are available from the Office of Counter-Terrorism to Member States, upon their request.

52. United Nations entities that have core mandates on building the capacity of rule of law institutions, as well as those that have relevant programming and activities, have continued to assist Member States in the implementation of the United Nations

Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The Secretariat has received submissions from the following entities on their implementation of the Strategy: the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, the International Civil Aviation Organization, the International Maritime Organization, the Office for Disarmament Affairs, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations, UNESCO, the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute, UNODC, the World Customs Organization and the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1540 (2004). A matrix of United Nations counter-terrorism projects and activities is set out in annex II.

V. Enhancing the international response to the terrorist threat

53. The international community has come a long way in its efforts to counter terrorism since the adoption of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. A key route to more effective counter-terrorism is a focus on prevention, as well as stronger international cooperation and enhanced coordination and coherence of the United Nations work in this area. They are the surest way to prevent a vicious cycle of instability and resentment.

54. Following the previous review of the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, the prevention of violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism has become a priority for many Member States and regional and subregional organizations. The Secretary-General regularly convenes a high-level action group on the prevention of violent extremism, which consists of the heads of 22 United Nations departments, agencies, funds and programmes, to ensure a coordinated and coherent common approach in support for Member States in this area. As the secretariat to the high-level action group, the Office of Counter-Terrorism is continuously mapping the work of the United Nations, which is now working in 81 countries across all regions of the world to prevent violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism, in response to Member States' requests.

55. Almost 60 Member States and many regional organizations are developing or starting to develop national and regional action plans to prevent violent extremism. In order to respond to these increasing demands, the Office of Counter-Terrorism and UNDP are cooperating at the strategic level. Combining its expertise with the sustained presence of UNDP on the ground will help the Office of Counter-Terrorism to further step up its support for the development of national and regional plans in accordance with General Assembly resolution 70/291.

(a) Reforming the United Nations counter-terrorism architecture

56. Following the establishment in June 2017 of the Office of Counter-Terrorism by General Assembly resolution 71/291, based on the proposal in the report of the Secretary-General on the capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (A/71/858), the Office has already taken practical steps to ensure the balanced implementation of the four pillars of the Strategy.

57. The Office of Counter-Terrorism and its Under-Secretary-General have the following mandate: to provide further leadership on the General Assembly counter-terrorism mandates entrusted to the Secretary-General from across the United Nations system; to enhance coordination and coherence across the 38 entities of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact, in order to ensure a balanced implementation of the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy; to strengthen the delivery of United Nations counterterrorism capacity-building assistance to Member States; to further improve the visibility, advocacy and resource mobilization of United Nations counter-terrorism efforts; and to ensure that due priority is given to counter-terrorism across the United Nations system and that the important work on preventing violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism, is firmly rooted in the Strategy. This will include better counter-terrorism support for United Nations field operations in close alignment with the reform of the United Nations peace and security architecture and the mandates given by Member States. The Secretary-General also wishes to emphasize that the promotion and protection of human rights and rule of law is essential to these revitalized United Nations counter-terrorism efforts.

58. Following the Secretary-General's recommendation, Member States have conferred on the Office of Counter-Terrorism a strong and multifaceted mandate. This testifies to their high expectations, on which the Secretary-General is committed to deliver. He believes that the work of the Office should be consolidated in three roles: policy and coordination, capacity-building and engagement in the field. Each of these roles needs to be adequately streamlined and resourced, in line with the outcome resolution of the current review in June 2018, under the overall leadership of the Under-Secretary-General for Counter-Terrorism. This should include the internal reorganization of the Office to respond to increasing demands of Member States for capacity-building assistance across the four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy.

(b) Enhancing coordination and coherence; and the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact

59. The complex and evolving threat of terrorism demands that the United Nations adopt an efficient, coherent and coordinated response. The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (General Assembly resolution 60/288), the successive review resolutions and the Plan of Action to Prevent Violent Extremism (see A/70/674 and A/70/675) emphasize the importance of strengthening coordination and coherence among United Nations entities working on counter-terrorism issues in order to effectively support Member States and regional organizations in developing and implementing holistic responses to address the scourge of terrorism. The need for such enhanced coordination is among the key reasons for the establishment of the Office of Counter-Terrorism.

60. On 23 February 2018, the Secretary-General signed the new United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact (see annex III) as an agreed framework between him and the heads of the United Nations entities, as well as INTERPOL and the World Customs Organization, in order to overcome the system-wide counter-terrorism coordination and coherence challenges. The key aim of the Compact is thus to strengthen common United Nations action in the counter-terrorism work of the United Nations system. It ultimately provides a strategic-level vehicle for coordination and coherence for the United Nations counter-terrorism work and addresses the gap which existed owing to the lack of terms of reference for the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and its working groups. The Compact arrangement is expected to replace the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force coordination arrangement as soon as all entities have signed the Compact. This transition will not, however, affect the terms of reference of the working groups and their leadership.

61. The Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force currently has 12 thematic working groups, which constitute a useful coordination and coherence tool. They bring together entities relevant to a particular theme to coordinate their capacity-building work in support of the efforts of Member States to counter terrorism. The working groups meet on a quarterly basis and report on a biannual basis to the Under-

Secretary-General for Counter-Terrorism in his capacity as Chair of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force. In addition to the Office of Counter-Terrorism and the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, representatives of UNODC, INTERPOL, UNESCO, OHCHR, the Department of Public Information, the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the International Atomic Energy Agency are among the chairs of these working groups. The new working groups on communications and gender were recently established to coordinate United Nations counter-terrorism work regarding these important areas.

62. Also crucial to the coordination and coherence of United Nations counter-terrorism efforts are effective cooperation and joint work between the Office of Counter-Terrorism and the Executive Directorate of the Counter-Terrorism Committee. Since the establishment of the Office, both bodies have made efforts to enhance their working relationship. Those efforts include: (a) weekly meetings of the Under-Secretary-General for the Office and the Executive Director of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate; (b) monthly follow-up coordination meetings of the two Offices; (c) exchange of informational notes by the two heads of office on issues and activities of common interest; and (d) a joint visit by the two heads of office to a Member State.

63. In resolution 2395 \(2017\), the Security Council directed the Executive Directorate of the Counter-Terrorism Committee and the Office of Counter-Terrorism to draft a joint report by 30 March 2018 setting out practical steps to be taken to ensure the incorporation of recommendations and analysis of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate into the work of the Office, to be considered by the Counter-Terrorism Committee, as well as the General Assembly, in the context of the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy review. The report was submitted and is provided in annex IV.

64. In 2017 and 2018, a number of United Nations entities also concluded bilateral strategic partnership frameworks and memorandums of understanding in order to strengthen the coordination of their respective work. Among these agreements are a memorandum of understanding between the Office of Counter-Terrorism and UNDP and a partnership framework between the Office of Rule of Law and Security Institutions in the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and UNODC.

65. Enhancing the coordination and coherence of United Nations efforts in the area of counter-terrorism will also help us to better leverage the United Nations system to have greater impact in the field. Member States are increasingly requesting support, and the approach of the United Nations is demand driven. While peacekeeping operations cannot take on counter-terrorism mandates, there is a need to further enhance capacity-building to counter terrorism and prevent violent extremism. It is however not possible for the United Nations to provide effective counter-terrorism support for the activities of Member States in conflict situations without a clear mandate to do so.

VI. Forging new international counter-terrorism partnerships

66. The threat that ISIL and its affiliates posed to international peace and security has dominated the fight against terrorism over the past two years. While ISIL is to a large extent militarily defeated in Iraq and Syria, the transnational threat that ISIL and other terrorist groups pose still persists. The Secretary-General has made one of his top priorities the enhancement of support for Member States in their efforts to implement the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and the various Security Council resolutions on preventing and countering terrorism. To address this global challenge to our communities, a new spirit of cooperation is also urgently needed among Member States.

67. It is vital that all Member States not only maintain but strengthen their resolve and unity against the threat of terrorism. There is a need to forge new international counter-terrorism partnerships to translate into reality the shared vision of Member States embodied in the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and make a real impact on the ground. Such partnerships could focus on two objectives. First, a decisive emphasis on implementing the existing international legal framework against terrorism as a means to buttress national capacities and enhance practical cooperation among Member States. Second, Member States can complement ongoing counter-terrorism efforts with a greater focus on building resilience in their societies.

68. In the signing of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact, the aim has been to move from the old framework to the new by fostering a new United Nations partnership through a more effective coordination framework, which can strengthen the coordination and coherence of the work of the United Nations system on counter-terrorism. The Secretary-General calls upon all entities which are signatories to the Coordination Compact to implement it, so that the United Nations can better support its Member States in their efforts.

69. The comprehensive implementation of the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Strategy is one of the key routes to more effective counter-terrorism. The Secretary-General called for a surge in preventive diplomacy when he took up his position last year, and it must be recognized that preventing conflict and fostering sustainable development are essential to efforts to counter terrorism and vice versa. Deterrence should also be a key element of such efforts, and Member States must ensure that highly trained terrorists who have chosen to travel to join conflicts and commit atrocities will be prosecuted under national laws when they return to their home countries.

70. Sustainable counter-terrorism efforts must be linked to the United Nations sustainable peace and sustainable development efforts. Such a comprehensive approach also implies creating more resilient societies. Terrorism thrives in places where there are weak institutions. The focus must be on building strong institutions and furthering, in particular, sustainable development goal 16 in this regard.

71. Finally, sustainability also hinges on impact. It is important that all United Nations entities engaged in designing and implementing interventions aimed at countering terrorism and preventing violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism demonstrate how such interventions achieve measurable impact and deliver results in the countries where they are delivered. A robust monitoring and evaluation framework is essential to measuring progress and assessing outcomes. Such a framework must have its basis in the sound design of activities and interventions.

Observations and recommendations

72. Member States must act on the basis of the consensus that nothing can justify terrorism and that terrorism must be prevented and countered in all its forms and manifestations. The harm that acts of terrorism inflict on individuals, communities, entire countries and humanity as a whole is unacceptable. Member States must uphold their international obligations and ensure that terrorists, without exception, are denied access to funds, recruits, weapons, safe havens or any other resources, in full conformity with their obligations under relevant Security Council resolutions.

73. The international community has come a long way in its efforts to counter terrorism since the adoption of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. A key to undertaking more effective counter-terrorism efforts is to focus on the preventive aspects of the Strategy. Enhancing the coordination and coherence of United Nations efforts in the area of counter-terrorism will also help us to better leverage the United Nations system to have greater preventive impact in the field.

74. It is encouraging that there are already a number of bilateral, regional and global arrangements involving a multitude of actors, including civil society, that contribute to the fight against terrorism. Such mechanisms must be strengthened, expanded and, where necessary, supplemented, in accordance with international law, to ensure the systematic sharing of information, regular consultations and exchanges and, to the greatest extent possible, joint action. It is essential that neighbouring Member States conclude bilateral agreements enabling close and proactive collaboration.

75. As part of its capacity-building role, the Office of Counter-Terrorism and the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact entities should facilitate and provide capacity-building assistance to requesting Member States. A decisive emphasis on implementation is needed, and it is critical to assist requesting Member States in building and upgrading their capacities to prevent and counter terrorism. The Office will continue to strive for greater impact, which is sustainable and demonstrable, including through integrated field-level engagement and monitoring and evaluation.

76. It is essential to bridge regional and bilateral efforts through global tools and platforms. Member States need to make urgent use of the framework and tools offered by INTERPOL to enhance international law enforcement cooperation against terrorism. The Secretary-General invites Member States to support his initiative to convene the first United Nations High-level Conference of Heads of Counter-Terrorism Agencies of Member States in New York on 28 and 29 June 2018, and to seize the opportunity to forge new partnerships, in particular through the establishment of new channels of communication, to improve the exchange of critical information in a timely and secure manner between and within Member States. This level of cooperation could also be sustained with the establishment of a global network of national counter-terrorism coordinators under the auspices of the United Nations.

77. Despite the military defeats of ISIL in Iraq and Syria there is no time for complacency. The issue of returning and relocating foreign terrorist fighters is a global phenomenon. There is a need to address the full life cycle of foreign terrorist fighters. In this regard, the Secretary-General calls upon Member States to counter the evolving threat of foreign terrorist fighters by implementing measures on enhancing border security, information sharing and criminal justice, as set out in the relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolution 2396 \(2017\). He further encourages Member States to participate in relevant projects under the framework of the United Nations capacity-building implementation plan for countering the flow of foreign terrorist fighters, developed as called for in the statement by the President of the Security Council of 29 May 2015 (S/PRST/2015/11).

78. In close collaboration with key stakeholders working on the research and development of new technologies, Member States may use the universal forum provided by the United Nations to exchange information on innovative approaches and prepare for the challenges and opportunities that new technologies provide in preventing and countering terrorism. The Office of Counter-Terrorism stands ready to facilitate this global dialogue to prevent the exploitation of new technologies for terrorist purposes. Member States should also develop public-private partnerships with businesses and industry in the fight against terrorism, including to counter terrorism financing, protect vulnerable targets and critical infrastructure and prevent the misuse of new technologies.

79. The international community will not be successful in preventing violent extremism conducive to terrorism unless it can harness the idealism, creativity and energy of young people and others who feel disenfranchised. Jobs, education and vocational training for young people must be an absolute priority in national development plans and in international development cooperation. While creating such opportunities is essential, Member States and the United Nations must also better listen, engage and inspire the 1.8 billion young people in the world. This engagement must be more than a symbol or check on a box.

80. Terrorism both denies and destroys human rights. The fight against terrorism cannot succeed without the protection of such rights. Counter-terrorism laws and policies must protect human rights and the rule of law, including the rights of victims of terrorism. The establishment of 21 August as the International Day of Remembrance of and Tribute to the Victims of Terrorism underscores the international community's commitment to stand in solidarity with victims and to work towards the recognition of their rights. As well as ensuring their rights, it is vital that Member States provide support to victims of terrorism in a sustained manner, and the Secretary-General encourages them to increasingly share information on their national programmes and policies in support of victims with the Working Group on Supporting and Highlighting Victims of Terrorism of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and make use of the Victims of Terrorism Support Portal. Victims also have a central role in any strategies or action plans to counter terrorism.

81. The Office of Counter-Terrorism has continued to mainstream gender as a cross-cutting issue in all areas of its responsibilities. Through the support of a United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre project on gender mainstreaming, the Office has worked to strengthen the capacity of all staff to integrate a gender perspective in their work, raise awareness about the importance of gender integration and women's participation and develop programmatic tools aimed at advancing gender equality and women's empowerment. The Secretary-General urges all programmatic United Nations entities to commit to meeting the target established in his report on women and peace and security (S/2015/716).

82. Requests from Member States for support for counter-terrorism are growing exponentially. With a mandate to provide capacity-building to Member States across the world, it is a challenge to meet the expectations and growing demands with very limited regular budget resources. The Office of Counter-Terrorism requires sustainable, predictable and diversified resources. The Secretary-General calls upon Member States to provide the new Office and its partners in the new United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact with additional financial and technical resources to enable the United Nations to effectively respond to the growing demands for capacity-building assistance from Member States and regional organizations.

83. The Secretary-General looks forward to the forthcoming review of the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy by the General Assembly and the subsequent High-level Conference of Heads of Counter-Terrorism Agencies of Member States, at which he hopes new multilateral partnerships, grounded in practical measures, can be forged. He encourages Member States to fully utilize the potential of the United Nations to help in fostering and harmonizing multilateral cooperation.

84. The Secretary-General also calls for an improvement in the methodology, content and impact of the collective work of Member States as well as the United Nations, which needs to be depoliticized if the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy is to have the desired impact on the ground. He therefore appeals to Member States for a consensual outcome of the review process of the Global Strategy. A strong consensus General Assembly resolution will send a resounding message to terrorists everywhere that the world is united in its resolve to defeat this scourge.

Although the General Assembly adopted a number of terrorism-related resolutions and declarations in the past, an important milestone was the 1994 Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism (A/RES/49/60). Following a report by my predecessor in May 2006, “Uniting against Terrorism: recommendations for a global counter-terrorism strategy”, the General Assembly arrived at a consensus resolution on “The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy” on 8 September 2006. The Strategy has been reviewed biennially since then. Additionally, the General Assembly has adopted 55 resolutions since 2006 which have addressed different aspects of terrorism, such as the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms while countering terrorism; mandates of specialized United Nations bodies such as the United Nations CTITF and UNCCT; and preventing the acquisition by terrorists of radioactive materials and of weapons of mass destruction.

The Security Council initially used its sanctions regime to address terrorism, such as the 1999 adoption of resolution 1267 and 1269 aimed at the Taliban in Afghanistan and later, Al-Qaida and related groups. Subsequent Council resolutions such as resolutions 1373, 1540 and 1624, have strengthened the legal framework for preventing and combatting terrorism. Since 2013, the Council has enacted further resolutions, often invoking Chapter VII, to address new types of terrorist threats. These include, among others, SCR 2133 \(2014\) which addressed the issues of kidnapping and hostage-taking by terrorists, and SCR 2170 \(2014\) and 2178 \(2014\) on suppressing the flow of Foreign Terrorist Fighters (FTFs), financing and other support to terrorist groups in Iraq and Syria.

Additionally, SCR 2178 \(2014\) addressed for the first time the need to counter violent extremism conducive to terrorism. SCR 2195 \(2014\) called for international action to prevent terrorists from benefiting from transnational organized crime. Similarly, in 2015, the Council adopted SCR 2199 (2015), aimed to prevent terrorist groups in Iraq and Syria from benefiting from trade in oil, antiquities and hostages, and from receiving donations. SCR 2242 (2015) outlined sweeping actions to improve implementation of its landmark women, peace and security agenda, covering its work on countering terrorism violent extremism conducive to terrorism. In SCR 2253 (2015), the Security Council expanded and strengthened its Al-Qaida sanctions framework to include a focus on ISIL, and outlined efforts to dismantle its funding and support channels. SCR 2309 (2016) addressed the issue of terrorist threats to civil aviation. SCR 2341 (2017) outlined new measures to protect critical infrastructure, while SCR 2354 (2017) focused on countering terrorist narratives. SCR 2368 (2017) renewed and updated the 1267/1989/2253 ISIL (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida Sanctions Regime.

In SCR 2370 (2017), the Security Council strengthened measures to prevent terrorists from acquiring weapons, while SCR 2379 (2017) addressed the accountability for crimes committed by ISIL in Iraq. SCR 2388 (2017) focused on disrupting human trafficking carried out by terrorist groups and SCR 2395 (2017) renewed the mandate of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate for a further four years. SCR 2396 (2017) addressed the evolving threat from foreign terrorist fighters through measures on border security, information-sharing and criminal justice. Other key United Nations bodies, such as the ECOSOC and the Human Rights Council, also contributed to the Organization's work on counter-terrorism during this period.

Annex II

Supplementary information: activities of United Nations entities in support of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy

Many CTITF entities actively work to implement the four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. This annex highlights some of the key activities these entities have carried out over the last two years.

Pillar 1: Measures to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism

Pillar I of the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy concerns measures to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, such as preventing and resolving conflicts, reducing social exclusion and marginalization, and promoting dialogue, tolerance and understanding among civilizations, cultures and religions.

Conflict prevention and resolution

The Department of Political Affairs (DPA) is the operational arm for much of my good offices, preventive diplomacy and mediation work. This work is perhaps best exemplified by my special envoys, advisers and representatives, whether they lead regional political offices, regional strategies or are dispatched from Headquarters. Country-specific field-based missions, be they political or peacekeeping missions, led respectively by DPA and DPKO, also undertake preventive work as they look to identify and address possible triggers for a relapse or an escalation of conflict. For example, the United Nations Assistance Mission in Iraq has continued to promote inclusive political dialogue and national reconciliation towards a united, stable and peaceful Iraq, which addresses the needs of marginalized groups. DPKO and DPA are currently examining how peace operations should adapt to complex conflict environments where both terrorist and criminal groups are present.

Where the United Nations has neither an envoy nor a mission, Resident Coordinators and the United Nations Country Teams assist Member States, at their request, in addressing emerging challenges. The Joint DPA-UNDP Programme on Building National Capacities for Conflict Prevention supports local capacity building in this vein. UNDP and several United Nations agencies, funds and programmes carry out a wide range of prevention activities aimed at addressing the root causes of conflict. My Human Rights Up Front initiative has at its core a strong focus on prevention of large-scale human rights violations, which are often correlated with an increased risk of conflict.

Preventing violent extremism conducive to terrorism

In the Horn of Africa, UNDP has implemented projects to build community resilience in Kenya and Tanzania by supporting the development of public and religious institutions and investing in youth-led organizations, movements and networks. In Jordan, UNDP organized an inter-religious dialogue in November 2016, which brought together more than 100 participants from 25 countries to discuss the instrumental role of religious leaders and religious institutions in enhancing diversity, tolerance and social cohesion to prevent violent extremism conducive to terrorism. In Kyrgyzstan, UNDP is working with social workers and local administrations to increase their responsiveness to women and girls at risk of radicalization.

UNODC, UNOCT and CTED have jointly developed a project on Managing Violent Extremist Offenders and Preventing Radicalization to Violence in Prisons. This project involved the publication of a comprehensive handbook for prison staff on managing the risk of radicalization in prisons and will soon start providing technical assistance to pilot countries. Specific objectives of the project include fostering cooperation among relevant national authorities, strengthening prison safety and security and advising on prison-based disengagement programmes.

In September 2017, UNDP published a study on “The Journey to Extremism in Africa: Drivers, Incentives and the Tipping Point for Recruitment”, which was based on interviews with 718 individuals from Cameroon, Kenya, Niger, Nigeria, Somalia and Sudan. UNDP, UNOCT and many other United Nations entities continue to support the development of inclusive and comprehensive national and regional Plans of Action to prevent violent extremism, based on national ownership and reflecting local, regional and national contexts.

UN Women has highlighted the important role of women in preventing violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism. It is implementing research projects to explore the factors behind women’s radicalization and mobilization in East Africa, the Sahel, Central Asia, the Balkans and South and Southeast Asia. UN Women also supports women’s organizations and civil society actors to strengthen partnerships with government to enhance women’s economic empowerment and promote women’s participation in the development and implementation of strategies and measures to prevent violent extremism conducive to terrorism.

Promoting dialogue, tolerance and understanding

The UN Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC) has continued its efforts to promote interreligious and intercultural dialogue and mutual understanding. For example, it partnered with the European Union and the United Nations Regional Information Centre in Brussels to organize a symposium on “Hate Speech Against Migrants and Refugees in the Media” in January 2017, within the framework of the UNOAC #SpreadNoHate campaign. UNESCO is spearheading the International Decade for the Rapprochement of Cultures (2013–2022), engaging a variety of actors in intercultural and interreligious dialogue to strengthen tolerance, mutual understanding and respect, to promote diversity and inclusion as strengths for all societies.

In July 2017, the United Nations Office on Genocide Prevention and the Responsibility to Protect launched the “Plan of Action for Religious Leaders and Actors to Prevent Incitement to Violence that Could Lead to Atrocity Crimes”, which made detailed recommendations to prevent and counter incitement to violence, enhance dialogue and collaboration, and contribute to building peaceful, just and inclusive societies.

Countering terrorist narratives

The CTITF Inter-Agency Working Group on Communications has developed capacity-building and technical assistance projects related to countering terrorist narratives when requested by Member States. For example, UNOCT is implementing a project on Preventing Violent Extremism through Strategic Communications which led to the development of the United Nations Strategic Communications Approach to Preventing Violent Extremism, which includes key recommendations and guidance on how United Nations entities should communicate about violent extremism using United Nations values as a foundation for effective alternative narratives that resonate at the local level.

CTED has promoted the adoption of “Tech Against Terrorism”, an initiative to support the ICT industry tackle terrorist exploitation of the Internet, while respecting human rights. The initiative was launched in 2017 and was subsequently recognized by Security Council resolution 2395 \(2017\) and 2396 \(2017\).

The Department of Public Information has used its traditional and digital media multilingual platforms, its global network of United Nations Information Centres and its array of outreach partners to raise global awareness and encourage support for fostering understanding and non-violence. These activities were often linked to the commemoration of United Nations international days and observances such as the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, the International Day of Peace and the International Day for Tolerance.

Preventing violence against women and girls

The United Nations condemns all forms of violence against women. In December 2016, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict produced a report highlighting the systematic and widespread use of sexual violence as a tactic of terrorism by ISIL. This report presented preliminary information that can serve as a basis for the consideration of listing of individuals, and deepening knowledge and understanding of the systematic use of sexual violence as a tactic of terrorism and its links with trafficking in persons. Following the signing by the United Nations and Iraq of a Joint Communiqué on the prevention of and response to conflict-related sexual violence in Iraq in December 2016, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict has been supporting Iraq in its efforts in developing an implementation plan to address this issue.

Pillar II: Measures to prevent and combat terrorism

United Nations entities have increased their engagement with Member States on a number of Pillar II topics, especially enhancing law enforcement and border controls and countering the financing of terrorism.

Law enforcement and border control

Over the past two years, the Security Council has adopted a number of resolutions containing provisions on law enforcement and border control in the context of counter-terrorism. However, fewer than a third of Member States have implemented Advance Passenger Information systems. To address this, UNOCT, CTED and range of United Nations entities delivered a project on Advance Passenger Information for 43 Member States that are most affected by the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon. Many of these Member States are now implementing national Advance Passenger Information Systems that are fully compatible with their border management infrastructures as well as international standards and obligations.

ICAO has worked with Member States and industry groups to ensure the implementation of international civil aviation standards and recommended practices and policies to prevent acts of unlawful interference and enhance global civil aviation security, facilitation and related border security matters.

ODA has continued to support the efforts of Member States to prevent the acquisition of small arms and light weapons by terrorists and terrorist groups. It has implemented a pilot project in the Lake Chad Basin, which provided technical assistance to Cameroon, Chad, Niger and Nigeria to support and strengthen their legal and judicial frameworks against small arms and light weapons.

The 1267 Committee adopted a range of recommendations of the Monitoring Team aimed at improving the operational effectiveness of the 1267 and 1988 sanctions regimes. Both Committees have continued to list, review and delist individuals and entities that fulfil the criteria of the two regimes, thus ensuring that the two sanctions lists are appropriately targeted to respond to the evolving threat.

Combating the financing of terrorism

CTED continued to strengthen its partnerships with international organizations, including the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), to promote the effective implementation of international counter-financing of terrorism standards, especially on freezing terrorist assets, pursuant to Security Council resolutions 1373 \(2001\), 2178 \(2014\) and 2253 \(2015\). In August 2016, CTED launched a database of national authorities responsible for asset-freezing, aimed at facilitating third-party requests for the freezing of terrorist assets. During 2017, CTED engaged with the private sector to help assess the terrorism-financing risks posed by new payment products and services.

UNODC further strengthened the ability of Member States, including Afghanistan, Algeria, Egypt, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Morocco, South Africa, Tajikistan, Tunisia, and Uzbekistan, to combat the financing of terrorism under its Global Programme against Money-Laundering, Proceeds of Crime and the Financing of Terrorism. UNODC has recently completed the development of six operational courses on countering the financing of terrorism, which have been designed for intelligence, police, financial investigation units, prosecutors and investigators.

Preventing and responding to CBRN and WMD attacks

The reporting period saw growing concerns about the threat from terrorist use of chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear (CBRN) weapons.

OPCW continued its comprehensive and long-standing programmes to support Member States to prevent and respond to an attack involving chemical weapons through the full and effective implementation of the Chemical Weapons Convention. This included providing training for border and customs officials to detect the illicit traffic of chemical materials. To improve the ability of the United Nations system to respond to terrorist CBRN attacks, the CTITF Working Group on preventing and responding to WMD attacks, co-chaired by IAEA and OPCW, implemented a project to ensure effective inter-agency interoperability and coordinated communication in the event of chemical and/or biological attacks.

The Office for Disarmament Affairs continued to support the efforts of the 1540 Committee to strengthen the implementation of Security Council Resolution 1540 by Member States. In this regard, it has organized or supported more than 50 events.

Pillar III: Measures to build States' capacity to prevent and combat terrorism and to strengthen the role of the United Nations system in this regard

Pillar III recognizes that Member States need to have the capacity to prevent and combat terrorism, and that international assistance in that regard must be provided in a coordinated and coherent manner. It specifically envisages a strong role for the United Nations in the provision and coordination of such coherent assistance in all four pillars of the Global Strategy.

UNOCT's Integrated Assistance in Countering Terrorism (I-ACT) initiative is specifically designed specifically to provide holistic assistance to a requesting Member State by strengthening coordination and coherence among all United Nations entities working in that country. The I-ACT initiative in the Sahel region is implementing nine projects covering priority issues including preventing violent extremism conducive to terrorism, border management and enhancing the rule of law and criminal justice. In Mali, the I-ACT initiative has organized workshops to enhance the capacity of Malian criminal justice and law enforcement officials to strengthen judicial cooperation and develop strategies to understand the process of radicalization that leads to terrorism.

The United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre (UNCCT) has completed 15 capacity-building projects and implemented an additional 30 projects to assist Member States, at their request, to implement the Global Strategy. The General Assembly recognized the important work carried out by UNCCT in its landmark resolution 71/291, which established UNOCT and transferred the Centre into the newly created Office. UNCCT is focused on ensuring that its programming is responsive to the emerging and evolving threats of terrorism and delivers genuine impact in the field. For example, it has expanded its programming to include cyber issues; preventing and responding to WMD terrorist attacks, and promoting the human rights based treatment of child returnees. It has also consolidated disparate projects into larger multi-year programmes for enhanced impact and sustainability.

Assisting the implementation of counter-terrorism legislation and enhancing the capacity of criminal justice officials and law enforcement officers

UNODC is helping to implement the Airport Communication Project, which aims to create secure, real-time operational communication between participating international airports in Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean in order to disrupt the various manifestations of transnational organized crime and terrorism in international airports. As a result of the project, the Sahel Joint Airport Interdiction Task Forces intercepted a number of foreign terrorist fighters travelling to and from armed conflict zones.

Combatting the evolving threat from foreign terrorist fighters

The United Nations has continued to adopt an “All-of-UN” approach to provide capacity-building assistance to Member States to counter the flow of foreign terrorist fighters. The United Nations Foreign Terrorist Fighters Capacity Building Implementation Plan addresses the full life-cycle of foreign terrorist fighters, including projects related to prosecution, rehabilitation and reintegration to support Member States in their efforts to address returnees. New projects have also been added which specifically address women and children. Of the 50 projects in the plan, 35 are now being implemented by 13 CTITF entities.

UNODC is delivering a major initiative to strengthen national legal frameworks and the capacity of criminal justice and law enforcement officials to respond to the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters in the Middle East, North Africa and South-Eastern Europe. During this reporting period, this initiative has produced a manual on foreign terrorist fighters for judicial training institutes in South Eastern Europe and has established multi-agency task forces for judicial cooperation on terrorist cases in the Middle East and North Africa region.

In May 2016, UNICRI and INTERPOL organized an International Workshop in Turin on Responding to the Threat of Returning Foreign Terrorist Fighters by Promoting and Implementing Rehabilitation and Reintegration Strategies. The workshop presented real case scenarios to simulate operational situations and identify potential gaps and solutions in relation to the threat of foreign terrorist fighters.

The United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia has provided advice to the Federal Government on implementing a national programme for the treatment and handling of disengaged combatants. In October 2017, it completed a project which provided job training to 1,000 disengaged fighters and community members in Mogadishu, Baidoa, Kismaayo and Beletweyne.

The CTITF Working Group on adopting a Gender Sensitive Approach to Preventing and Countering Terrorism and Violent Extremism has designed a project on the gender dimensions of the returning foreign terrorist fighter challenge, which will provide a concrete tool for Member States on the gender dimensions of rehabilitation and reintegration procedures and mechanisms.

Pillar IV: Measures to ensure the protection of human rights and the rule of law while combating terrorism

Protection of human rights

Country visits by the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms while countering terrorism between 2016–2018 included Sri Lanka (2017), Tunisia (2017) and Saudi Arabia (2017). The Special Rapporteur's broader thematic reports have provided the means to remind, clarify and advise upon the legal obligations of Member States, as the methods and means of counter-terrorism and prevention of violent extremism conducive to terrorism try to keep pace with the changing technological, territorial, and behavioural patterns of terrorist actors and organizations.

The CTITF Working Group on Promoting and Protecting Human Rights and the Rule of Law while Countering Terrorism, chaired by OHCHR, has begun implementing its global capacity-building project to support the integration of human rights in the counter-terrorism initiatives of security and law enforcement officials. Training sessions and engagement with senior government officials have taken place in Jordan, Iraq, Mali, Nigeria and Tunisia, with further trainings to take place in Cameroon in 2018. The Working Group has also published five reference guides, which provide practical guidance for national action on human rights-compliant counter-terrorism measures.

UNHCR continues to provide support to Member States in upholding international protection principles while addressing legitimate security concerns, including the proper registration of asylum seekers and refugees by border officials trained in relevant aspects of security, refugee, and human rights protection.

Support for victims of terrorism

The CTITF Working Group on Victims of Terrorism has promoted a number of resources to support the victims of terrorism. This includes the Victims of Terrorism Support Portal, which is dedicated to and highlights the importance of those individuals around the world that have been attacked, injured, traumatized or lost their lives during terrorist attacks. In 2017, DPI produced a documentary, "Surviving Terrorism: Victims' Voices from Norway", featuring two victims of the 2011 terrorist attack in that country to raise awareness of the importance of supporting victims of terrorism.

Supplementary Information: Matrix of UN Counter-Terrorism Projects and Activities

This summary matrix of counter-terrorism projects, which United Nations entities under the CTITF framework are carrying out provides an overview of the range and breadth of counter-terrorism-related assistance of the United Nations. The global reach of these projects demonstrates the resourcefulness of United Nations entities and the opportunities available for pooling resources and synergies. As such, it serves as a valuable source of information for programming, monitoring and evaluating projects.

This matrix of projects and activities includes essential information on all United Nations Counter-Terrorism Projects and Activities being carried out or planned by CTITF entities. As of February 2018, CTITF entities have a total of 320 projects across the four pillars of the Strategy: 120 projects under Pillar I; 55 projects under Pillar II; 128 projects under Pillar III; and 17 projects under Pillar IV. The CTITF matrix shows that since the publication of the last report in 2016, the number of United Nations counter-terrorism projects and activities has grown under Pillars I and III in particular, which indicates that CTITF entities acknowledge the importance of addressing the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism and to undertake necessary measures to build States' capacities to combat and prevent terrorism. Projects under Pillars II and IV have remained virtually the same in number since 2016.

Annex III

Supplementary Information: The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact

I. Introduction

1. Attacks from terrorist and violent extremist groups are widespread in frequency and geographical scope, with victims coming from almost all Member States. In this context, the United Nations could support Member States efforts, at their request, to effectively respond to these challenges. A key United Nations goal in this regard is to support Member States in the implementation of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (A/RES/60/288) and its successive review resolutions, relevant Security Council resolutions, including Resolution 1373 (2001) and 1267 (1999) and their successive resolutions, and to further Member States' commitment to sustainable peace and sustainable development — which reinforce the values of the Charter of the United Nations.

2. The development and implementation of comprehensive counter-terrorism actions requires collaborative efforts among different government departments, agencies and relevant civil society partners. United Nations support to these efforts must be equally comprehensive and collaborative. Therefore, a common action approach is important for the United Nations to respond to Member States' requests. A similar comprehensive and collaborative approach is needed at the national, regional and global levels supporting transnational interaction between national bodies where possible.

3. The complex and evolving threat of terrorism and violent extremism demands an efficient, coherent and coordinated response by the United Nations, and Member States, which have the primary responsibility to address this threat in compliance with international law and their human rights obligations. In this regard, the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (A/RES/60/288), its successive review resolutions, and the Secretary-General's Plan of Action to Prevent Violent Extremism (A/70/674-A/70/675) emphasize the importance of strengthening coordination and coherence between United Nations entities both at Headquarters and the field to effectively support Member States and regional and sub-regional organizations, at their request, to address the scourge of terrorism, in ways that are consistent with national strategies of Member States.

4. Upon assuming office in January 2017, the United Nations Secretary-General put a United Nations common action approach at the heart of his reform efforts of the UN peace and security architecture. In his report on the "Capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy" (A/71/858) of April 2017, the Secretary-General emphasized that "given the evolving nature of the threat, the United Nations needs to adapt its action and continuously improve its counter-terrorism efforts."

5. In this context, it should be noted that the United Nations Security Council resolutions 1373 (2001), 1456(2003), 1624 (2005), 2178 (2014), 2341 (2017), 2354 (2017), 2368 (2017) and 2370 (2017), as well as Human Rights Council resolution 35/34 and General Assembly resolution 70/148 require that States must ensure that any measures taken to combat terrorism and prevent violent extremism, including incitement of and support for terrorist acts, comply with all of their obligations under international law, in particular international human rights law, refugee law, and humanitarian law, and that Security Council resolution 2242 (2015) "[c]alls for the greater integration by Member States and the United Nations of their agendas on women, peace and security, counter-terrorism and countering-violent extremism...."

6. It should also be noted that Security Council resolution 2395 \(2017\) “calls on UNOCT, all other relevant United Nations fund and programs, Member States, donors, and recipients to use [CTED’s] expert assessments as they design technical assistance and capacity-building efforts, including in furthering the balanced implementation of the [Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy] across all four of its pillars.”

7. In order to leverage the comparative advantages of the United Nations norm setting and convening authority to support Member States to address the evolving threat of terrorism, Member States have set up a number of General Assembly and Security Council mandated counter-terrorism bodies. On 15 June 2017, the General Assembly adopted resolution A/RES/71/291 on “Strengthening the capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy” and established the UN Office of Counter-Terrorism (OCT) based on the Secretary-General’s proposal. The OCT, in collaboration with other United Nations entities, is now the lead counter-terrorism policy and coordination entity and one of the main capacity-building providers mandated by the General Assembly.

8. During the General Debate of the 72nd Regular Session of the General Assembly, Member States called for increased international cooperation and the strengthening of United Nations coordination and coherence efforts to effectively prevent and counter this challenge. On 16 November 2017, the Secretary-General announced in his speech on “Counter-terrorism and human rights: winning the fight while upholding our values” in London that he intends “to develop a new United Nations system-wide Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact,” underscoring how respect for human rights and the rule of law will secure long-term benefits in the fight against terrorism. This Compact is developed based on Member States’ emphasis on strengthening of coordination and coherence of the United Nations counter-terrorism efforts and a decision of the Secretary-General.

II. Definition

9. The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact (hereinafter the “Global Compact”) is an agreed framework between the Secretary-General and the heads of United Nations Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities [38 as of now]. It aims to strengthen a common action approach to coordination and coherence in the counter-terrorism and prevention of violent extremism (PVE) work of the United Nations system, and to strengthen support to Member States, at their request, in the implementation of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, and other relevant United Nations resolutions and mandates, while ensuring compliance with international law, including international human rights law and, where applicable, international humanitarian law.

III. Coordination Framework

10. The institutional framework for the implementation of the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact will be the following:

a. Membership

The UN Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact will be signed between the UN Secretary-General and Heads of United Nations Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Member Entities. Entities having observer status within the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force will retain this status in the context of the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact. Entities which are not currently Members of the CTITF can join the Compact in consultation with the Office of Counter-Terrorism.

b. The Global Compact Coordination Committee

The Global Compact Coordination Committee will be chaired by the Under-Secretary-General for Counter-Terrorism. The Counter-Terrorism Executive Directorate will have a seat in the Coordination Committee. The Committee will comprise the chairs and vice chairs of the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Working Groups and advise on the development of a Compact programme of work and provide guidance on its implementation.

c. Support by the United Nations Office of Counter Terrorism

The United Nations Office of Counter-Terrorism [OCT] will provide secretariat support to the Global Compact Coordination Committee.

d. Review of the Compact

The Compact member entities will review it every two years on the basis of the General Assembly biennial review resolution of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy.

e. Status of the Compact

Nothing in this Compact shall be construed as creating an agency relationship or legal partnership or binding responsibility between the Entities involved. This Compact does not in any way interfere with, and is without prejudice to, any existing partnership frameworks, decision-making processes, or mandates of the Entities.

IV. Fundamental Objectives

11. Parties to this Compact commit to abide by and implement the following principles and objectives, without prejudice to their respective mandates, decisions and decision making processes and programmatic actions, to achieve stronger coordination and coherence of United Nations work in support of Member States' efforts to counter terrorism and prevent violent extremism, with respect for human rights and the rule of law as the fundamental basis. The implementation of these principles will be based on the balanced implementation of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, premised on compliance with international human rights law, international humanitarian law and refugee law with an essential focus on gender equality and youth empowerment.

(a) A commitment to action-oriented collaboration to support implementation of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, relevant UN General Assembly and Security Council and Human Rights Council resolutions and in response to requests by Member States, as compatible with each Entity's core mandate and without prejudice to the decisions and resolutions taken by the governing bodies of the Entities.

(b) A commitment that the UN's counter-terrorism and PVE efforts at UN Headquarters and in the field, in collaboration with UN Country Teams, are evidence-based, guided by the principle of national ownership and in line with UN Principles and Purposes under the Charter.

(c) A commitment to close cooperation to support the development of an effective common approach to counter-terrorism and PVE programs and projects both at Headquarters and field levels, taking a country by country approach, as well as at regional levels; such cooperation will be based on the comparative advantages of the Entities and their mandates, while reducing duplication and overlapping where possible between efforts of various Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Entities in their delivery of technical assistance, and encouraging joint programming and implementation, coordinated participation at international conferences, forums and other counter-terrorism and PVE events. Any cooperation will be without prejudice to the mandates of respective Entities and taking into account the need to preserve humanitarian principles and humanitarian space in line with the Secretary-General's PVE Action Plan.

(d) A commitment to timely information-sharing, where possible, including on designing, programming, executing, delivering and impact assessment, as well as to the provision of feedback from programme/project designers, facilitators, the donor community, implementing agencies and recipients. This commitment is subject to any applicable rules of the Entity information sensitivity, classification and handling.

(e) A commitment to meaningful consultations within the UN system and with other relevant stakeholders, and to using the Working Groups as a core vehicle for the coordination and coherence of Entities' work under the overall umbrella of the Compact Coordination Committee, without prejudice to the mandates of respective Entities.

(f) A commitment to enhancing cooperation with intergovernmental organizations, as appropriate, in particular those with regional or sub-regional coverage, partnerships and expertise, in order to adapt technical assistance activities to the specific regional or national requirements and to avoid duplication with their actions.

(g) A commitment to developing and implementing joint or mutually-reinforcing capacity-building counter-terrorism and PVE programs and projects, while respecting and considering the impact of projects on the mandates of other entities, such as, ensuring that projects do no harm to local communities and preserve humanitarian space and principles, particularly where peace operations are deployed.

(h) A commitment to consider the establishment of a joint resource mobilization and outreach mechanism with donors who wish to support UN counter-terrorism work.

(i) A commitment to ensure that all UN counter-terrorism and PVE efforts at the country-level are aligned with relevant national development strategies, relevant UN policy objectives, such as those in the women and youth peace and security agendas, and where relevant, the UN Development Assistance Frameworks.

(j) A commitment that the UN's counter-terrorism and PVE efforts in the field will be supported by UN Headquarters through country specific or regional coordination efforts, which include conducting risk assessments to ensure that all projects are grounded in respect for international law, including international human rights law and, where relevant, international humanitarian law. This will entail the application of the Human Rights Due Diligence Policy to all UN assistance to non-UN security forces and institutions in the context of UN counter-terrorism and PVE efforts.

(k) A commitment by the Global Compact Coordination Committee and the OCT to ensure that in the implementation of this Global Compact the relevant mandates of Entities, their decision-making processes, as well as humanitarian principles, as applicable, are fully respected.

V. Implementation Framework

12. The Global Compact Coordination Committee, in consultation with the relevant Entities, will develop a two-year programme of work to support implementation of the biennial review resolution of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy in a balanced manner and in line with other relevant UN resolutions.

13. The United Nations Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Working Groups will brief the Coordination Committee on a quarterly basis on the progress of the implementation of their respective work plans and issues of concern for the Coordination Committee and Working Groups.

14. The Under-Secretary-General for Counter-Terrorism will periodically brief UN Member States on the implementation of the Global Compact.

15. The United Nations Office of Counter-Terrorism and relevant Entities will regularly brief the Coordination Committee on the latest counter-terrorism and prevention of violent extremism policy developments, and the Committee members will in turn brief their respective Working Groups.

16. The Working Groups, through their Chairs, will provide mid-year and end-of-Year progress reports to the Coordination Committee.

17. The Under-Secretary-General for Counter-Terrorism, in his capacity as chair of the Coordination Committee, will present an annual report on the implementation of the Global Compact to the Secretary-General.

18. The UN Office of Counter-Terrorism will prepare consolidated progress reports for the Coordination Committee based on inputs of the Working Group chairs.

19. The UN Office of Counter-Terrorism will maintain a matrix of all projects and relevant activities of Parties to the Global Compact by country and theme.

20. The UN Office of Counter-Terrorism will enhance the visibility of and communication about the work of Entities through the Compact.

VI. Monitoring and Evaluation

21. The Coordination Committee will develop a common monitoring and evaluation framework, as well as accompanying tools when relevant, with which to measure the overall impact of UN capacity building activities.

Annex IVSupplementary information: Joint report of CTED and the UNOCT pursuant to paragraph 18 of Security Council resolution 2395 (2017)*A. Introduction*1. Requirement for joint report of CTED and the UNOCT pursuant to Security Council resolution 2395 (2017)

1. In its resolution 2395 (2017), the Security Council reaffirms that “terrorism in all forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security” and underlines the need to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, as set forth in the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (A/RES/60/288). The resolution also underscores the central role of the United Nations in efforts to counter terrorism and the importance of strong cooperation between the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate (CTED) and the United Nations Office of Counter Terrorism (UNOCT). In its paragraph 18, the resolution directs the two bodies “to draft a joint report by 30 March 2018 setting out practical steps to be taken to ensure the incorporation of CTED recommendations and analysis into UNOCT’s work, to be considered by the Counter-Terrorism Committee (CTC), as well as the General Assembly in the context of the Global Strategy review”.

2. Need for strengthened collaboration and cooperation

2. Security Council resolution 2395 (2017) highlights ways and areas for cooperation between CTED and UNOCT, reflecting the complementarity of the mandates of the two entities. The use of CTED’s neutral, expert assessments of the implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions by Member States and its analytical work on emerging issues, trends, and developments in the design of technical assistance and capacity-building efforts by the UNOCT and other United Nations entities will not only further the balanced implementation of the Global Strategy across all four of its pillars, but also strengthen coherence across the United Nations system in support of Member States.

3. Terrorism in all its forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security. No cause and no grievance can justify any act of terrorism. The Secretary-General’s first reform initiative was to create UNOCT to provide strategic leadership of United Nations counter-terrorism efforts and ensure that countering terrorism is given due priority in the work of the Organization and that the important work on preventing violent extremism is firmly rooted in the Global Strategy. On 28 and 29 June 2018, the Secretary-General will convene the High-level Conference of Heads of Counter-Terrorism Agencies of Member States, which will aim to enhance international counter-terrorism cooperation by facilitating operational and practical exchanges and consensus-building on key terrorism issues affecting Member States.

4. The Secretary-General has stressed the importance of enhancing coordination and coherence across the 38 Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force (CTITF)/Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact entities¹ participating in the 12 Working Groups² in order to ensure an “All-of-United Nations” approach to implementing all four pillars of the Global Strategy. He has signed the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact, which will strengthen system-wide cooperation on counter-terrorism issues throughout the United Nations. Effective cooperation between UNOCT and CTED is crucial to the coordination and coherence of United Nations counter-terrorism efforts. It also maximizes the comparative advantages of each entity and the complementarity of expertise, bringing added value through the sharing of information and ensuring a common foundation for United Nations support.

B. Overview of CTED and UNOCT mandates and cooperation

1. Mandates of UNOCT and CTED

5. CTED was established by Security Council resolution 1535 \(2004\) as a special political mission, responsible for assisting the Counter-Terrorism Committee to monitor, facilitate and promote Member States’ implementation of Security Council resolution 1373 \(2001\) and subsequent resolutions, decisions and presidential statements of the Council on counter-terrorism.³ In its resolution 2395 \(2017\), the Council “underscores that neutral, expert assessment of the implementation of resolutions 1373 \(2001\), 1624, 2178 \(2014\) and other relevant resolutions, is the core function of CTED, and that the analysis and recommendations from these assessments are an invaluable aid to Member States in identifying and addressing gaps in implementation and capacity”. The resolution also describes the scope of CTED’s mandate, which encompasses country visits; assessments; analysis of emerging issues, trends and developments; and facilitation of technical assistance, and requests CTED to integrate gender as a cross-cutting issue throughout its activities and to integrate the impact of terrorism on children.

6. On 15 June 2017, the General Assembly adopted resolution A/RES/71/291, on “Strengthening the capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy” and also established the UNOCT, in accordance with the report of the Secretary-General of 3 April 2017 (A/71/858), which defines the following five main functions for the Office:

- a) Provide leadership on the General Assembly counter-terrorism mandates entrusted to the Secretary-General from across the United Nations system;
- b) Enhance coordination and coherence across the 38 CTITF entities to ensure balanced implementation of the four pillars of the Global Strategy;
- c) Strengthen the delivery of United Nations counter-terrorism capacity-building assistance to Member States;

² The 12 CTITF Working Groups are: 1) Border Management and Law Enforcement Relating to Terrorism; 2) Countering the Financing of Terrorism; 3) Foreign Terrorist Fighters; (4) National and Regional Counter-Terrorism Strategies; 5) Preventing and Responding to Weapons of Mass Destruction Attacks; 6) Preventing Violent Extremism and Conditions Conducive to the Spread of Terrorism; 7) Promoting and Protecting Human Rights and the Rule of Law while Countering Terrorism; 8) Protection of Critical Infrastructure, including the Internet, Vulnerable Targets and Tourism Security; 9) Supporting and Highlighting Victims of Terrorism; 10) Legal and Criminal Justice Responses to Terrorism; 11) Gender-Sensitive Approach to Preventing and Countering Terrorism; and 12) Working Group on Communications.

d) Improve visibility, advocacy and resource mobilization for United Nations counter-terrorism efforts; and

e) Ensure that due priority is given to counter-terrorism across the United Nations system and that the important work on preventing violent extremism is firmly rooted in the Global Strategy.

7. During the general debate of the seventy-second session of the General Assembly, many Member States welcomed the establishment of UNOCT and called for increased international cooperation and the strengthening of United Nations coordination and coherence to effectively counter terrorism and prevent violent extremism. The Global Strategy and its fifth-review resolution (A/RES/70/291) also underscore the importance of strengthened coordination and coherence of United Nations counter-terrorism efforts. Security Council resolutions 2341 \(2017\), 2354 \(2017\), 2368 \(2017\), 2370 \(2017\), 2395 \(2017\) and 2396 \(2017\) also emphasize and encourage enhanced cooperation and coordination among relevant UN entities.

2. The use of CTED's analysis in the development and implementation of UNCCT projects

8. One of the key functions of UNOCT is to strengthen the delivery of United Nations counter-terrorism capacity-building assistance to Member States, at their request, to support the implementation of the Global Strategy, including through the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre (UNCCT).

9. UNOCT is one of the main counter-terrorism capacity-building providers of the United Nations. The assessments and analysis of CTED play an important role in the development and implementation of UNOCT projects. The work of CTED should feed into the standard project lifecycle of the UNOCT, where appropriate, which consists of seven steps: Idea; Analysis; Planning; Financing; Initiation; Implementation; and Evaluation. The idea for a UNOCT [UNCCT] capacity building project is always guided by the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, Member States' requests for capacity-building assistance, and CTED's assessments and analysis. Currently, the UNCCT 5-Year Programme (2016–2020), sets out the thematic areas the Centre is working on.

10. In implementing relevant projects, UNOCT may also rely on CTED's expertise, including to brief requesting Member States on the requirements for full implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions.

11. UNCCT projects are fully funded by extra-budgetary contributions, its work is guided by relevant General Assembly resolutions, including A/RES/66/10 and A/RES/71/291, and aimed at contributing to the implementation of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and strengthening the delivery of United Nations capacity building assistance to Member States. Some of the voluntary contributions may be earmarked [by donors] for specific activities. UNCCT also assiduously avoids duplicating the efforts of other United Nations entities.

3. Good practices and steps taken since establishment of the UNOCT to strengthen cooperation within the UN system and with CTED

12. Security Council resolution 2395 \(2017\) notes the crucial role of CTED within the United Nations and its expertise in assessing counter-terrorism issues and in supporting the development and promotion of well-informed counter-terrorism responses and urges UNOCT and all other relevant United Nations bodies to take into account CTED's recommendations and analysis in the implementation of their programmes and mandates. It also calls on UNOCT, all other relevant United Nations funds and programmes, Member States, donors, and recipients to use CTED's expert assessments in their design of technical assistance and capacity-building efforts, including in furthering the balanced implementation of the Global Strategy across all four of its pillars”.

13. In developing a methodology for strengthening cooperation, CTED and UNOCT are able to draw on examples in which the two Offices have worked together to develop shared products that highlight key areas in which capacity-building assistance is required. These include the Foreign Terrorist Fighters (FTF) Capacity-Building Implementation Plan (which relied on CTED’s assessment of priority States and issues); the Advanced Passenger Information Programme (which incorporates CTED’s expertise, advice and inputs throughout its implementation); and the ongoing exercise related to the Joint Programme of Action on Central Asia (JPoA) (which may prove to be a good practice). CTED has also contributed to the design and delivery of a UNOCT and UNODC project on addressing violent extremism in prisons and will support the project throughout its lifecycle. The UNOCT and CTED have also cooperated on the UNOCT’s Integrated Assistance for Counter-Terrorism initiative in the Sahel region and worked closely on the development of regional counter-terrorism strategies.

14. Since the establishment of UNOCT, both bodies have made efforts to enhance their working relationship. Those efforts include: (i) weekly meetings of the Under-Secretary-General for UNOCT and the CTED Executive Director; (ii) monthly follow-up coordination meetings of the two Offices; (iii) exchange of informational notes by the two Heads of Office on issues and activities of common interest; and (iv) joint visit of the two Heads of Office to a Member State.

15. The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Compact should further enable coherent development and implementation of technical assistance projects aligned to CTED’s assessments and analysis. UNOCT has already provided most Working Groups with seed money to support priority projects agreed by the participating entities.

C. Practical steps to be taken

16. Good progress has been made on enhancing coordinating and collaboration between the UNOCT and CTED since the creation of the UNOCT in 2017. To build on and deepen further the effective cooperation, CTED and the OCT identified the following practical steps:

1. Priority regions and areas for collaboration

a) CTED and the UNOCT will closely consult on States, regions and related thematic areas for technical assistance and capacity building purposes, to use CTED assessments and analytical work, including on emerging issues, trends and developments, to identify needs for technical assistance and capacity-building efforts, consistent with balanced implementation of the Global Strategy. Priority areas for collaboration will incorporate States on the annual list of visits of the Counter-Terrorism Committee, as well as States previously visited by the Committee. The two Offices will also provide each other with a list of annual activities. CTED and UNOCT will also keep each other informed of their follow-up activities.

b) UNOCT will help to advocate for the use of CTED’s assessments and analysis within the context of the Working Groups and provide advocacy and other support to Working Group entities to implement projects that address priority technical assistance needs identified by CTED and endorsed by the targeted Member States;

c) UNOCT will ensure that CTED's assessments and expertise are fully considered in the implementation of the Integrated Assistance for Countering Terrorism initiative in current areas of focus (G5 Sahel, Mali and Nigeria) and in future initiatives; and

d) UNOCT will regularly provide CTED with an updated matrix of information on UNOCT projects in priority regions.

2. Country visits and follow-up

a) CTED will share recommendations and assessments from all country visits with UNOCT via a specially designed communication portal and other available means and procedures, except when requested by the assessed Member States to keep selected information confidential;

b) Where possible, UNOCT will participate in CTED visits to States included in the list approved by the Counter-Terrorism Committee;

c) UNOCT will inform CTED, in advance, about States to be visited, particularly those that have recently been visited or are scheduled to be visited by CTED, to facilitate the timely exchange of information; and, where possible, CTED will join UNOCT on its visits;

d) Following a visit, CTED and UNOCT will consult with a view to agreeing on areas in which UNOCT could provide technical assistance, capacity building, advocacy, or other support.

3. Joint outreach activities

a) Where possible, UNOCT and CTED will continue to organize joint briefings with the relevant donor community, including technical assistance providers, implementing agencies, and key stakeholders;

b) UNOCT and CTED will undertake, as necessary, joint resource mobilization on specific States, regions or needs; and coordinate with visited Member States to secure technical assistance on recommended and agreed areas. These joint efforts would be intended to complement any existing partnership frameworks;

c) CTED and UNOCT will consult and collaborate with each other on participation in international, regional, subregional and national events and activities on counter-terrorism-related issues.

4. Cooperation on design and development of projects and programmes

17. CTED and UNOCT have some good examples of successful cooperation in the design and development of projects and programmes as set forth in resolution 2395 \(2017\). However, there is a need to widen and enhance this cooperation to strengthen capacity building support to States and regions.

18. During the development process, UNOCT will work closely with CTED, including by using CTED's assessments and analysis as well as analysis of trends and developments, to identify projects, anchored in the Global Strategy, that would most benefit Member States. As appropriate, CTED would contribute to more detailed project documents developed under the planning phase and the financing and initiation stages, by supporting the identification of donors and the identification and selection of expert consultants and staff.

19. CTED may recommend to UNOCT that it address specific needs through existing programmes supported by UNOCT, and where appropriate may provide advice on adjusting those programmes accordingly in order to respond to evolving needs, threats and trends identified through CTED's ongoing dialogue with Member States and its analysis.

20. CTED and UNOCT will work to ensure that gender and the impact of terrorism on children remain cross-cutting issues throughout all areas of coordination between the two Offices. This work is in line with the gender-related provisions of Security Council resolutions 2178 \(2014\), 2242 \(2015\), 2331 \(2016\), 2395 \(2017\), 2396 \(2017\) and other relevant resolutions, as well as with the gender-related provisions of the fifth-review resolution (A/RES/70/291) of the Global Strategy. CTED and UNOCT will continue to work closely to advance gender equality and the empowerment of women throughout the assistance provided to Member States and to hold consultations with women and women's groups to inform projects and programmes. This includes CTED's sharing of relevant gender recommendations and assessments from its country visits with UNOCT, as well as its gender-sensitive research and data, where appropriate.

5. Sharing of information

a) CTED and UNOCT will continue to hold meetings of the two Heads of Office, as well as monthly coordination meetings, in order to share information on a timely basis and to update each other on relevant plans;

b) CTED will regularly share its mission reports, analytical products and survey tools with UNOCT, with a view to improving their utility, for UNOCT and others, with respect to the design of technical assistance and capacity-building support;

c) UNOCT will share its mission reports with CTED, as well as documentation shared with UNCCT Advisory Board members.

d) CTED will, as appropriate, provide strategic advice to UNOCT leadership on counter-terrorism and countering violent extremism issues, including for the purpose of informing the Secretary-General and other senior leaders of the United Nations;

UNOCT will also share with CTED other relevant information originating from United Nations Offices in the field or at Headquarters, aimed at better informing CTED for the purpose of implementing the tasks conferred by the relevant Security Council resolutions.

D. Strategic communication; monitoring and evaluation of implementation of practical steps

a) CTED and UNOCT will deliver a joint presentation to the General Assembly, within the framework of the sixth review of the Global Strategy, on the implementation of resolution 2395 \(2017\) and the present joint report and its impact;

b) CTED and UNOCT will deliver a joint presentation to the CTC on the implementation of resolution 2395 \(2017\) and the present joint report;

c) Where the two Heads of Office undertake a joint visit, they will deliver joint briefings to the relevant bodies, as appropriate and will engage in outreach activities aimed at promoting the impact of those missions;

d) UNOCT, at the most senior level, will brief the CTC twice annually;

e) Where appropriate and relevant, the Chair of the CTC may invite UNOCT to participate in CTC meetings (for example, where CTED will be presenting its findings and recommendations from its country visits); and

f) Where appropriate, UNOCT will invite CTED to jointly brief the General Assembly and the Executive Committee of the Secretary-General on efforts to incorporate CTED's recommendations and analysis into the work of UNOCT.
